Jersey's Late Show

A REMINDER

To-night will see the first really late show at the Jersey theatre, with the second at 10.45 Springfield commencing at 10.45 and continuing until 12.30 a.m. The public are asked to cooperate and remember that it would be the easiest thing in the world for the management to lose this concession because of undue noise or rowdiness on the part of members of the audience either coming to or going from the theatre.

Evermore is earnestly requested to make as little noise as possible, both in and around the theatre—great from the normal sounds such as conversation, applause, etc.—in order to ensure that weekly late performances may be

WE LEARNT A LESSON FROM LACK OF SOAP

Housewives had to take whatever they could get — now they KNOW what washes whitest

More than half now plump for PERSIL!

MILLIONS of women now know what millions of other women knew before—but it took soap-rationaling to make them discover it!

Some used to think all that talk about Persil washing whiter was just advertising. Then came soap-rationing. They had to take what their shopkeeper had. Sometimes one thing, sometimes another. Sometimes Persil. They used each one in turn.

And were they delighted! It was true. Persil did wash whiter. They could see it with their own eyes—and seeing is believing!

TOOK THEIR CUE FROM QUEUING
The long years of shortage have had one effect. Because women had to take what their shopkeeper had, they learnt that Persil really does wash whiter!

7 million British women can't be wrong! A nation-wide survey, completed, indicates that more than half the housewives* in Great Britain now prefer Persil for whiteness.

This means Persil now has over 7,000,000 fans! Such overwhelming preference for a soap powder is really amazing.

The simple truth is that Persil washes whiter sparkling white as nobles will claim. Safe but sure, Persil's million of tiny, oxygen bubbles carry away the dirt that makes clothes so grey. And Persil forms no scum, even in hard water.

Getting your share of Persil about the ground is still far ahead of supply. So continue to ask for Persil but if you can't get it, please be patient. Your shopkeeper will go on doing his best to get Persil for you.

*7 MILLION WOMEN NOW SAY

PERSIL WASHES WHITER!

REG. 1186-87-88

DO YOU REMEMBER? SOMEONE'S MOTHER ISN'T USING PERSIL YET!

This Persil advertisement appeared in 1939. Even then millions of women knew it told the truth—that Persil washes whiter. And now new millions have been forced to learn that Persil washes whiter—by having to try everything in their turn. After all experience is the best teacher!

By commission of the British.

RUSSIANS SAVED FROM BERLIN LYNCHING

Berlin. German police said last night that German and U.S. Military Police rescued two Russian officers from a crowd of thousands of Germans who were about to lynch them in the U.S. Sector of the city. The police said that the two Russians, one of whom was drunk, had entered the U.S. Sector on a shopping tour. Near the Schoenberg Station they began making obscene gestures and were soon surrounded by a threatening crowd. Three German patrol cars and one U.S. Military Police car finally dispersed the crowd. — B.U.P.

Jersey's Summer School for Teachers

Official Reception at Town Hall

Extending a welcome to the officials and members of the National Union of Teachers and the lecturers who are taking part in the Jersey Summer School at an official reception given by the States of Jersey at the Town Hall last evening, Senator C. H. B. Avarne, vice-president of the Public Instruction Committee, speaking from the chair, said that owing to the sudden illness of the president of the Committee (Senator Philip Le Quesne), it fell to his lot to offer those present a most cordial welcome to the Island and, as a member of another profession, he was all the more honoured to address a few words to members of the teaching profession.

Reminding his hearers that they had come here to attend a summer school which would increase their knowledge, Senator Avarne added that he hoped that during their deliberations they would find time to go around our beautiful Island which, unfortunately, owing to the drought, was rather dried-up at the moment. Senator Avarne then assured the teachers from the mainland that any short-comings of the Jersey Committee were those of ignorance rather than of goodwill.

After making several humorous references which drew forth much laughter, the Senator added that it was difficult to run education in Jersey on the standard they would like it to be, but he felt that the relations between the local Committee and the N.U.T. were most cordial.

In conclusion, Senator Avarne hoped that they would all have a good time in Jersey, so much so that they would all want to return. (Applause.)

The N.U.T. Spokesman

Replying on behalf of all taking part in the school, Mr. L. G. Selway, West of England member of the executive of the N.U.T., said that in the first place they were all sorry that the president of the Public Instruction Committee had been taken ill and felt that it was the wish of all present that Senator Avarne should convey their expressions for his speedy recovery.

After thanking the Senator for his kind remarks, Mr. Selway said that that day was a red-letter day in his life for it was the first time he had visited Jersey and the first time he had ever been in an aeroplane, a trip which had been accomplished in comfort though they did go round and round before they alighted at the Airport. (Laughter.)

Continuing, Mr. Selway said that he would like to say how proud they all were to know that Jersey teachers belonged to the N.U.T. and that one of the reasons why this Island had been chosen for a summer school was to say "thank you!" to Jersey teachers for helping to keep the torch aflame during the dark days of the Occupation. He felt that the next ten days would not only be profitable for the teachers who had come over from the mainland but also for their Jersey members.

In conclusion the speaker offered the thanks of the Executive and staff of the headquarters of the N.U.T. to the States officials; the Headmaster of Victoria College; Mr. Downer, local secretary of the Summer School, and to all in Jersey who had done anything to help them. "On behalf representative I learned that the Summer Schools, which started last year when two schools were held, had proved such a success that this year they were running five schools—one at Oxford, another at Brighton, the one in Jersey, a fourth at Ashbridge (Berks.) and a specialist school at University College, Leicester. Mr. Hickman added that the N.U.T., which had over 700 branches and a membership of 190,000, next year contemplated running at least another five Summer Schools during the August recess, when it was hoped that it would be possible to include Guernsey as one of the venues.

Occupation Days Recalled

Mr. Hickman was full of praise for the manner in which the N.U.T. was run in Jersey, especially during the Occupation, when all the local members not only kept up their reputation, but also their donations to the Benevolent Fund.

Opening Session

A MOST INTERESTING LECTURE

The opening session of the summer school took place at 9.30 this morning at the Howard Davis Hall at Victoria College when the Rev. G. R. Balleine read a paper on "The Constitution of Jersey."

After apologizing for the absence of the Bailiff, who is on vacation, Mr. A. B. Garter, president of the Jersey Teachers' Association, said that it was felt that they could not do better than commence their sessions with a lecture on the Constitution of the Island and for this they were indebted to the Rev. G. R. Balleine, honorary librarian of the Société Jersiaise and a noted historian. (Applause.)

"The Constitution of Jersey"

Reading a concise yet most interesting paper, the Rev. Balleine after speaking on the customs (Coutumes) of Normandy and of the ancient Dukes of whom from Rollo to King John, who lost Normandy, there were fourteen, William the Conqueror being the seventh, then went on to deal with the "Clameur de Haro" an ancient privilege and right of the Islanders in seeking justice, which still persists in this day.

After speaking of the so-called constitution of King John, in 1208, the lecturer referred to the probable origin of the twelve Jurats, the founding of the Royal

THE ST. BRELADE'S TRAGEDY

Inquest Verdict of Suicide

At the inquest held yesterday afternoon on the St. Brelade resident found dead in his scullery with gashes on his arms and legs the following evidence was given:—

Dr. F. G. Maitland said that just before 11 p.m. on Tuesday he was called by Centenier Chevalier to Cumbala, Les Landes Avenue, St. Brelade. When he arrived there he saw the body, and it was apparent that death had taken place within six hours previously. He examined the body, which bore a great number of cuts on the arms, wrists and ankles, all inflicted with a razor or razor blade. Two of the cuts on the arms were in themselves sufficient to cause very great loss of blood. The body was lying in the kitchen, with the head away from the gas oven, the tap of which was turned off, but which, witness was informed, had been turned on when Centenier Chevalier entered the room. Death was due to loss of blood, accelerated by gas poisoning. The cutting with the razor blade took place in the bathroom. Witness had attended deceased several times, but not since 1947. Deceased was deported during the war and since then had complained of depression, lack of concentration and loss of memory, and these things worried him very much. Witness saw him on the 14th inst, not professionally, and deceased did not then mention anything about his health. Witness had never seen any signs of suicidal tendencies.

Centenier J. H. Chevalier, of St. Brelade, said that at about 10.45 p.m. on Tuesday Mr. Moysie, a neighbour of deceased, telephoned and asked him to come as he feared there had been a tragedy. Witness went to Cumbala with Constable's Officer Piquet and on arrival at the house, Mr. Moysie showed them an envelope hanging across the hall with a message pencilled on it "Please go to the bathroom." There was a strong smell of gas in the hall. Witness and C.O. Piquet went to the bathroom but as the smell of gas grew stronger witness opened the door adjoining the bathroom. He found the gas oven full on and the body of deceased lying on the floor. C.O. Piquet turned off the gas and opened the window and witness telephoned for Dr. Maitland. In the bathroom witness found a table knife and a razor blade on the side of the bath, which was half full of water and thickly coloured with blood. The sides and top of the bath were also thickly coated with blood and there was much on the floor and on two napkins. On a table were two letters, one addressed to the Jersey police and the other to Mrs. Lola Mackenzie. Deceased's full name was Georges Sugdury; he was a native of Kharkov, Russia, and aged 73. The letter to the police said that since he returned to Jersey in 1945 he had felt his brain going soft and it had been getting softer every day, so he decided to commit suicide. He also stated that he left all he possessed to Mrs. Mackenzie.

C.O. G. T. Piquet corroborated this evidence.

Mr. P. E. Moysie told how he was called about 10.35 on Tuesday night by Mrs. Mackenzie next-door neighbour, who asked him to help her as something dreadful had happened. Witness went there and found the door open and Mrs. Mackenzie more or less collapsed in the hall. He saw a piece of mat stretched across the hall with note attached to it. Witness went into the bathroom, which was found half-full of water with blood, and blood all over the floor. Witness closed the door, telephoned to the Centenier while witness was telephoning Mrs. Mackenzie ran into the bathroom again and called "He's in the bath!" witness went into the kitchen, at which time Mrs. Mackenzie's statement that the body was in the bath. Deceased was a charming man, but lately had been getting childish; one great reader he would now struggle into space.

Mrs. Lola Mackenzie (née I. Moysie) said that she came back about 10.45 p.m. and on opening the door noticed a strong smell of gas. When she put on the light she saw the string and mes already referred to. Witness corroborated Mr. Moysie's statement. Deceased had been depressed lately and had in the past made vague suggestions of suicide, they were very vague. A verdict of suicide was returned.

Bath Doctor Weds Daughter of Local Resident

On 23rd of July, the Church of St. Mary, Clavelle, was filled with relatives and friends of the bride and bridegroom on the occasion of the wedding of Dr. Keith Balleine of the The Elms, Maple Grove, Bath, only son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. W. Batten, and Patricia M. Poyner Wall, your daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Poyner Wall, of La Cotte (stage, St. Brelade's, and of Allahabad, India. The Rev. H. E. Hopley, was officiating clergyman. The bridegroom was recently commissioned in the R.A.M.C., while the bride is a radiographer in the then department at the Manor Hospital, Bath.

The service was choral and Lionel Blake, brother-in-law of the bridegroom was at the organ. Given in marriage by her father and attended by her sister, Phyllis Poyner Wall, as bride maid, the bride was gowned white figured satin with a net veil and coronet of orange blossoms; she carried a bouquet of dark red roses. The bride maid was attired in a dress of blue organdie and her bouquet was of pink roses. Dr. Han Stanley, friend of the bridegroom was the best man, and at the ceremony the guests repaired to the Spa Hotel, Bath, for wedding reception. The honeymoon is being spent in Chantilly, near Paris.

COURT

and the property of Montague Burton's Limited, at 4 King Street, St. Helier, and this to the prejudice of the said company.

Centenier Poingdestre explained how a report had been received regarding a broken window, at 4 King Street, and P. G. Le Quesne and P. Tardivel had gone to investigate. A Mr. J. D. Woodward, who resided opposite, told them that he had seen a man loitering near Burton's, and later heard a crash. Mr. Woodward had looked out to see the man run off.

P. C. Le Quesne said that he had found accused, apparently trying to break in Messrs. Noel and Porter's store in Don Street. Accused was under the influence of drink but not incapable. Witness had taken him to the Police Station.

P. C. Tardivel corroborated Mr. H. Sawyer, manager of Burton's, confirmed the manager.

Mr. Woodward related events of the night in question and said that he was satisfied when, in company with P. C. Le Quesne, he had found the man in Don Street, that he was the same man he had seen loitering outside Burton's window.

Accused said that he was a waiter at the Femme d'Or Hotel and that this was his first appearance in any Court. He was very sorry for what he had done but had been drunk.

He was sentenced to 15 days' hard labour.

EVIDENCE IN WRITING

Evidence in writing was taken in the case against Aidan Sydney Chapman, charged with smuggling cigarettes, and forgery on two Customs declaration forms.

Evidence in writing was also taken in the case against Raymond Clarence Le Mounier, who, with two other youths, is charged with the wilful firing of an air pistol at Diane Yentes.
